ARBOR DAY TREE-PLANTING

David Haugh, forest nurseryman, has made the following special report to President W. M. Giffard of the board of agriculture on Arbor Day for 1912. He says:

"The total number of trees distributed for Arbor Day planting amounted to 13,645 (13,145 pot-grown and 500 in transplant boxes), divided as follows:

	Number of trees.	Number of schools.
Oahu	13	283
Hawaii	7	236
Maua	14	479
Kauai	6	471
Molokai	4	329
Total	44	1908

General Public. Applications for trees were received from 248 persons residing in and around Honolulu. To this number might be added 400 children from the public schools who called on Arbor Day and received one tree each.

"The number of trees distributed amounted to 9514. From the outside districts of the other islands, including Oahu, orders were received for 2233 trees.

Summary. Public schools

"The demand for flowering and shade trees has been much larger this year than for any preceding Arbor Day and our stock of those is almost exhausted. We have, however, a large number of forest and windbreak trees still in stock."

PESTS KEPT OUT OF HAWAII

In his report for October to the board of agriculture, E. M. Ehrhorn, superintendent of entomology, makes some interesting statements, showing how only everlasting vigilance keeps Hawaii from being overwhelmed with pests of vegetation. Under the head of "Pests Intercepted," the entomologist says:

"During the month forty-eight packages of fruit and vegetables, including two packages of sugar cane, were taken from the baggage of passengers and destroyed. The sugar cane consisted of ten pieces, three feet long. This was taken to the Lucas mill and burned."

"In the mail during the month we handled ninety-two packages of corn and peas infested with the Angoumois grain moth and the pea weevil, and notified the shippers of these infested shipments."

"Several passengers from Japan brought chestnuts which we found badly infested with weevils and larvae of a moth and these were first fumigated with carbon bisulphide and then destroyed by burning. While inspecting on the dock we found a single specimen of the Harlequin cabbage bug, Murgantia histrionica, crawling on merchandise cargo. I only mention this to show that it is very easy for insects to be transported from one country to another. This bug probably found its way from some cabbages on an adjacent dock in San Francisco and was brought in here unmolested in the ship's hold."

Also, while walking on deck of the steamer China from the Orient, a common dermestid beetle, Dermestes vulpinus, flew onto my coat from out of the hold of the vessel. This insect infests hides and is found around bone fertilizers, etc., and is cosmopolitan.

"One hundred gardenia plants which arrived by freight on the steamer Chiyu Maru were badly infested by a Lepidopterous borer, probably a Tortrix species. The larvae had girdled the young plants at the surface of the ground and also had made channels through the bark of the plants. Our preliminary fumigation with Hydrocyanic acid gas failed to kill them. We then fumigated them with Carbon bisulphide and burned up the entire shipment."

Mr. Ehrhorn says that 35 vessels arrived during the month, of which 15 carried vegetable matter. Out of 1246 lots and 29,480 parcels, totals of 195 were fumigated, 877 burned and the balance passed as free from pests. New crop rice from Japan, 21,544 bags, was found clean.

Brother M. Newell reported the arrival of ten vessels at Hilo. Five steamers bringing 154 lots and 2369 parcels. Nothing had to be condemned. In the inter-island inspection of steamers were attended to and 794 lots passed, while 66 were refused shipment."

David Haugh, forest nurseryman, in his regular report for October gives a total of 1423 plants distributed during the month. With regard to plantation companies and other corporations he says:

"Under this head orders have been received for 5000 trees in transplant boxes ready to set out. Orders so far received to be delivered during the months from November 1912 to February 1913 reaches the total of 500,000 assorted trees in seed boxes and 17,000 in transplant boxes ready to set out. 140,000 trees in seed boxes have been delivered during the month and 12,000 trees in transplant boxes and 50,000 in seed boxes will be delivered in November. The orders will all be filled in time for the season's planting."

PNEUMONIA.

"Wonder Why That
House Has Been
Vacant So
Long?"

Is a thought that comes to many people as they pass by placarded property. Perhaps, on the day when the placards were hung in the windows, somebody was watching the "To Let" ads in the hope of finding exactly such a place. Perhaps today somebody would answer a classified ad of that very house—if the owner had been wise enough to publish one!
